Friends of Grayshott Heritage - Data Protection

I am sure you have been recently inundated with GDPR compliance requests and I am afraid I'm asking for the same.

If you didn't already know, the new General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) commenced on 25th May 2018.

This new regulation enforces privacy for all individuals within the UK and EU and aims primarily to give control to citizens and residents over their personal information.

To comply with the new laws, we need you to let us know that you are still happy for us email or write to you regarding the important work Grayshott Heritage does to preserve and record local history, send newsletters and Friends evening information.

We do not sell, give or deliberately loose information to any third party and that information is held and managed in a responsible way.

We make it easy for individuals to withdraw their consent at any time, just email and tell us you wish to remove your consent and would like your details removed and we will take you off of our mailing list.

More information can be found on our website grayshottheritage.com

Thank you.
